III. Project DetailsProject Description

This course examines how the international relations and politics impact on the Philippine development and security agenda.

The international order is going through major changes with scholars and analysts commenting that there is a return to geo-politics. International security and stability is becoming more complex and managing these should become top priority for security strategists. The most crucial region today is the wider Asia Pacific. This dynamic region is home to great powers and strategic relationships that create a complex security environment. Focus will be given to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, the US Alliances in Asia, the rise of China, and the role of other regional states such as Japan, South Korea, Australia, and India.

Project Objective

The course objectives are as follows:

1. To enable the student to learn the theories and key concepts in understanding relations among states and other actors in the international system;
2. To make the student identify and understand the changes taking place in the global and regional environment; and
